TEAM NOTES

BLUE DEVIL MEN HEAD TO LONE STAR STATE FOR NCAAS

- A quartet of Blue Devils will represent Duke at the NCAA Men's Swimming and Diving Championships, which get underway Wednesday evening at the University of Texas' Lee and Joe Jamail Texas Swimming Center.
- Divers Nathaniel Hernandez and Evan Moretti return to the national stage after both garnered honorable mention All-America recognition at last year's NCAA Championships.
- Hernandez and Moretti will be joined by first-time qualifiers Max St. George and Miles Williams.
- The Blue Devil men will send representatives to the NCAA Championships for the 10th consecutive season and the 17th time overall this weekend in Austin. Historically, Duke men's swimmers and divers have totaled 18 individual All-America honors under the watch of head coach Dan Colella.

ACC CHAMPIONSHIPS RECAP

- The Blue Devil men received a solid start heading into the swimming portion of the 2019 ACC Championships behind the efforts of the squad's divers, who totaled 170 points to lead all teams. Senior Evan Moretti was named the league's Most Valuable Men's Diver at the conclusion of the meet Saturday after recording a meet-high 77 points across the three boards and garnering All-ACC honors in Thursday's three-meter competition. Moretti joined former Blue Devil Nick McCrory as the only divers in men's program history to earn the award.
- Over the course of four days in Greensboro, N.C., the Duke men's swimmers took down program records in five individual and four relay events, with senior Max St. George and junior Miles Williams both recording record-breaking swims in multiple individual events. Williams and senior Judd Howard each raced to top-five finishes the final night, with Howard also turning in a top-five showing in the 100-yard breaststroke.
- The Blue Devils improved upon their point total from a year ago, collecting 624 points to finish seventh in the final team standings.
